TWELVE MONTHS IN CHANCERY.

The Bonds Declared to Be the Pro perty of the Defendant and Plain Engene Barnes To-Day.

The suit of Mr. John Dunlop, one of the executors of the estate of the late Francis T. Willis, against Edward J. Willis, grandson of the deceased, for $150,000 of State bonds, which Mr. Willis claimed were given to him by his grandfather before the latter's death, was decided yesterday by Judge Lamb in the Chancery Court in favor of the defend-

The estate has been in chancery for the past twelve months, and though it was announced at the outset that the suit was a friendly family affair, it was vigorously contested.

Mr. Dunlop contended that without the bonds the provisions of testator's will could not be carried out, and the estate would be largely deficient. Plaintiff con-could not be carried out, and the estate would be largely deficient. Plaintiff contended further that the testator never gave the bonds to the defendant, and never executed any power of attorney.

Judge Lamb decreed that the fifteen bends of the State of Virginia, each for $10,000, registered and standing in the name of Francis T. Willis, issued 1801, and bearing 2 per cent. interest, and generally called "century bonds," are the undivided property of Edward J. GENERAL MAURY ON DR. HGGE.

The Great Soldier Pays a Noble Tribute to the Great Preacher,

General Dabney H. Maury, writing to Judge George L. Christian, from Peoria, Ill, under date of January 14th, says: "I have just heard of the death of Dr. M. D. Hoge, our friend and associate in the work of the Southern Historical Society. It has been a source of manly pride to me that from the first I have been associated with the great Dr. Palmer, pianist, may appear in Richmond on the 28th of February. A guarantee list will of New Orleans, and our Dr. Hoge in the worthy work of the Southern Historical Society; that when our children and our Society; that when our children and our children's children point to that proud record, they will rise up and bless us. Much has been done to that end. High courage is the very foundation of high and noble manhood. Dr. Hoge had courage of the highest order. All of our good people will mourn his absence from our noble community. He was worthy of the highest place in it. Had he been a soldier—a great general—as he was a brave man, and dared do what became a brave and good Christian gentleman. I hope and know that our people will honor extent of this list depends the contract which will bind this superb artist to give The amount of the guarantee asked for by Rosenthal's managers is almost fabu-lous, but Mr. Moses has the utmost conantee list will tell its own story.

They were delighted with the statues, with colonial pictures, and the young indies secured a copy of the portrait of Pocahontas and other curios. They were accorded a gencious reception by Governor Tyler, who invited them to the reception at the mansion given Monday night in honor of General Wheeler.

The party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Osterman, Miss Frieda Osterman, and Miss Henrietta Welcker, and was chaperoned by the well-known actor and manager, Mr. George Hoey. seen everything done as an occasion so full of pure and manly sorrows demands.

Mr. Paull's New Compositions.

Mr. Pauli's New Compositions.

The Music Trades, in its December issue, pays a high compliment to two rescent compositions of Mr. E. T. Pauli, formerly of this city:

In the new piece just published by the E. T. Pauli Music Company, "Uncle Jasper's Jubliee," which was composed by E. T. Pauli, we have one of the most original and novel compositions that we have seen or heard in a long time. Mr. Pauli's ability as a march writer is too well known by the trade and the public generally to need any special comment from us at this time. In this last piece of Mr. Pauli's he has combined all the elements of a successful march, two step, cake walk, and characteristic dance. He has embodied more or less of the syncopated or rag-time movement in this new candidate for public favor, and that he has succeeded admirably is attested by the fact that every orchestra leader who has had an opportunity to play the piece has pronounced it to be the best of its kind now published.

No greater compliment can be paid to Mr. Pauli's ability than for Herbert L.

At the regular meeting of Lafayette Royal-Arch Chapter, No. 43, to-morrow night, Grand-Lecturer William J. Hubard will be present and confer the Royal-Arch degree upon a distinguished minister and two prominent business-men of this city. A large turnout of chapter Masons will be present to greet Right-Excellent Hubard, who is an old Richmond boy, and to learn at his feet the true work of capitular Masonry. Mr. Hubard will be the guest of Major A. R. Courtney, No. 507 west Grace street, during his stay in the city. pronounced it to be the best of its kind now published.

No greater compliment can be paid to Mr. Fauli's ability than for Herbert L. Clarke, the great virtuoso cornet soloist, band and orchestra arranger, to speak of it in the highest terms. This he has done in reference to this piece, commending it for its original and characteristic style.

Mr. Pauli is also the author of the beautiful ballad, just published by this house, entitled "If You Were Only by My Side." This is one of the prettiest pieces published in years. A very pretty and novel effect is obtained in the chorus by an imitation of chimes or wedding belis. On the handsome title-page Cupid is seen in a church beifry, ringing a chime of belis, oddly and artistically constructed. Mr. Pauli says that this is one of his best efforts. He has spent a year's time in writing, rewriting, going over, and harmonizing the melody in this piece, and he believes it is a song that will last for years. Harris vs. Jones & Brown, commission-fers. Argued by H. R. Pollard for appel-lee, and submitted. Goldsmith & Co. vs. Latz. Argued by Eugene Withers for plaintiff in error and continued until to-day. The next cases to be called are Wright vs. Independence National Bank, of Phil-vs. Independence National Bank, of Phil-adelphia, and Tate vs. Lazarus, Nos. 27 and 28.

Car and Wagon Collide. Traction Car No. 65 collided with a large, heavily-loaded two-horse wagon yesterday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock at the corner of Henry and Broad streets, and did some little damage to the front of the car and fender. The wagon was not injured.

This society, which is twenty-four years old, embraces all the Protestant denomi-nations. Captain C. E. Vawter, of Albemarie, is president of the society, and its other officers are all well-known Sunday-school workers. Mr. Alfred J. Gary, of this city, is the recording secretary.

The General Vaccination.

The work of vaccination goes rapidly forward, and the physicians engaged will forward, and the physicians engaged will meet to report progress to-night. It is not all plain sailing, however, and though no vigorous opposition has been met with, the fact that it is not compulsory has led many persons to refuse absolutely to submit to it, while others have de-clared that they will call in their family physicians to perform the operation.
